Program Description

This one-year Community Support Certificate program will provide students with the knowledge and skills to offer safe and competent support to individuals in need. With the opportunity to pursue meaningful and significant differences in the lives of individuals in the public and private sectors.

Some core skills covered include: Interpersonal communication, Receding and Reporting, Introduction to Community Support, Introduction to Indigenous World Views, and Community Service learning.

What can I do with a Community Support Certificate?

Successful completion of this Certificate will set students up in a number of community service related professions and prepare students for entry-level positions in the social and community work fields and undergraduate degrees at any University.

Graduates of this program will have acquired a platform to pursue further academic endeavors and provide them with job roles and opportunities such as child and youth worker, outreach worker, pregnancy worker, addiction worker, newcomer services, shelters, adult care, case management and community access worker.

At Canadian Imperial College we are in the business of opening possibilities and creating opportunities.
